I just downloaded Android Studio and I would like to make some changes to my project that is currently being built by Gradle. How do I do this? A: Your best bet would be to create a fork on Github. From what I recall, the files you would modify are compiled as part of the build process and not in your code. Simply do a git checkout to switch branches in your local file system to your local fork, go ahead and make the changes you would like to make and then push to Github. Q: Matching unique objects in array with another in php I have a program that keeps track of different items in my inventory. I am creating a function in order to find if a given inventoryitem is within my inventory, for this part of my program I have the following function: function in_inventory($item) { $inventory = array('coffee' => array('bar', 'apple', 'chocolate'), 'oil' => array('salt','soya', 'canola')); if (!isset($inventory[$item])) { 1cb139a0ed
