Q: How do I limit the width and height of a HTML5 video tag? I am developing a website and I would like to limit the width and height of the video to like 100px but I am a little bit confused by the width and height specifications of the video tag.

A: If you have a video element in your page and set the width and height attributes, it will restrict it to that size. See this fiddle for an example.

A: This script will allow the user to resize the video to any size he/she likes.

Q: Why can't the simple case be the most important case? I have this argument that I think is right. But if it is, I have a really bad case of feeling stupid. Please tell me why it's wrong, or, at least, tell me where it's wrong.

A: Just for completeness, I'll mention the standard answer (if we're talking about classical logic). The simplest case of a certain proposition is called the most important case. The standard answer goes like this: The proposition is true in the most important case. There are other cases in which the proposition is false. Therefore, the proposition is true. The question about "Why can't the simple case be the most important case?" can be phrased in a way that is closer to the actual paradox that the answer tries to avoid. What the paradox of the simple case is trying to show is that the reasoning about the case where the proposition is not true (the first case) is just a version of the reasoning about the case where the proposition is not true (the second case). If there is a valid proof that shows that the proposition is true when it's not true, the reasoning that shows that the proposition is false when it's true is a special case of that proof. Therefore, the reasoning about the case where the proposition is true when it's false is just a version of the reasoning about the case where the proposition is true.

It is also common for people to use cars for transporting persons and stuffs. Car parts are not easy to get. Creating a sense of coherence in palliative cancer care. It is important to establish a sense of coherence (SOC) in palliative cancer care. Many patients and their relatives suffer from a lack of mental energy, which leads to a sense of emptiness and confusion. The disease is almost always accompanied by a feeling of hopelessness. The strategies of the palliative care team are, in our opinion, insufficient. Therefore, we developed an intervention. We chose 10 cases that we thought could be suitable to teach in a group. We performed a group process in a palliative care ward in which the sense of coherence (in the TNO SOC scale) of the staff and the patients were measured before and after the intervention. The results show that the intervention is worthwhile. It is possible to train people to experience a sense of coherence in the palliative care setting. Q: Laravel - session variables not being set in subrequest I have a service where I use PHP's `$_SESSION` variable. In the service, I have a call to an API where I would like to send my session ID. I do so in the first API call, and then, in the second call, I use the session ID to get the data I need. However, the session ID is not being set when I call my API service. What am I doing wrong? Here is my `login.blade.php`

$user = new User(); if ($request->ajax())
{ $user->first_name = $request->first_name;
$user->last_name = $request->last_name; $user->username =
$request->username; $user->
