Not only could the Pittsburgh Pirates win the wild card, but Toronto Blue Jays' ace Aaron Sanchez could be traded before his current 25-day suspension for using PEDs ends. Sanchez, 26, has only appeared in 13 games thus far in 2018, all of them with the Blue Jays, due to a lingering biceps injury that's kept him from pitching in the majors since the start of the 2016 season. Sanchez and the Blue Jays have reportedly been discussing a trade to the New York Mets as the deadline nears and the Mets look for starting pitching, however Sanchez wants his rehab to be completed before joining the Mets, according to the Toronto Sun's Bruce Arthur. So far this season, Sanchez has a 4.29 ERA and a 1.53 WHIP in 31.1 innings. Sanchez is making $7.5 million this season, and is owed $50 million over the next three seasons. He won 20 games in 2016 and 2017. After Sanchez is suspended by MLB, he will be ineligible to participate in any MLB-sanctioned baseball activities for 25 days. The suspension will expire April 20. Sanchez has a lifetime MLB record of 9-14 with a 4.83 ERA. He was suspended for 45 games in 2015 for throwing a pitch at Detroit Tigers 82138339de
