The number of employees working for onshore wind farms fell by 14,644 over the six months to the end of March, according to ONS figures published today. That's the largest drop in the sector of any of the three main renewable sources of energy, the figures show. Wind (1,170,000) and solar (82,400) actually saw employment growth, but that was offset by the 14,000 drop in fossil fuel (oil, gas and coal) employment. Generation of renewable energy helped drive employment growth to the highest level in 10 years, from a base of 2.35 million workers in the last quarter of 2014. Renewable employment now accounts for 11.2 per cent of all UK employment, up from 9.4 per cent last year. Wind made up the largest part of this, with onshore wind farms now employing 1.1 per cent of the UK workforce, up from 0.95 per cent last year. Offshore wind (0.74 per cent) was the smallest contributor to the total, but the largest contributor to employment growth, up from 0.43 per cent in the last year. In the whole energy sector, the ONS said employment rose by 2,800 over the three-month period, with 1,730 jobs for the power industry and 1,040 for the refining and chemicals industry. Overall, the energy industry added 115,000 jobs between the last quarter of 2014 and the end of last year. Commenting on the figures, Baroness Kramer, chair of EEF Energy, said: "It is encouraging to see more companies turning to renewables to meet their growing energy needs, not just at home but abroad, too. "Demand for clean energy generation will only continue to grow and the Energy and Climate Change Bill will help renewables to continue their rapid growth." Alex Nix, director of policy at E3G said: "These figures are a great source of optimism for the future. The scale of energy efficiency and renewables means UK jobs are much more diverse than in the past. "People working in other sectors are increasingly choosing to work for energy companies which are required to use more clean energy."Q: Python - excluding certain elements from a list I'm currently working on an assignment that requires me to find the correct player (2 of them) in a list.

Q: Connect multiple Wordpress websites with subdomain to single Magento 2.1 multi store I'm trying to connect multiple Wordpress websites (domain.com) with subdomain (admin.domain.com) to my Magento (admin.domain.com) multi store. What I tried so far: I created a Virtual Host on my Raspberry Pi and installed Nginx and Wordpress via VestaCP and my client want to access to each website via subdomain. I tried to implement this step in my Nginx config: server { listen 80; server_name admin.domain.com; root /var/www/admin.domain.com/var/www/domain.com; location / { index index.php; try_files $uri /index.php?$args; autoindex on; } } This is as far as I got. Wordpress is working fine, I can access to each admin/area and each frontend. But I'm not able to access to Magento admin from Wordpress Frontend and my RPI is not connected to Internet via VPN. I installed Avira Anti Virus for my RPI and don't know what I can do to be safe while deploying my Wordpress websites. Here's my /etc/hosts file: #DNS 127.0.0.1 localhost 192.168.0.101 www.domain.com 192.168.0.103 domain.com #Networking #Raspberry Pi 192.168.0.102 raspi.domain.com 192.168.0.104 web How can I fix the problem? A: Finally, I found the solution. I installed VestaCP on Raspberry Pi and configured it so it could access to Internet and install additional programs: sudo apt install apt-transport-https ca-certificates Paste here the following line: wget --progress=bar --quiet --output-document=/etc/apt/sources.list.d/vesta.list
