Mp3Dodgers may be out of playoff race, but team is still a powerhouse For the last six years, the Dodgers have been the California powerhouse in the National League. This year, they are showing signs of failing. But they are still on top of their game. They are 12-11 in their last 23 games, a .543 winning percentage. The record is 6-2 in their last eight games. But the Dodgers are not out of the race for the National League West title. They are only three games behind the fourth-place Padres. The Dodgers are 2.5 games behind the Giants and 2.5 games ahead of the first-place Diamondbacks. The Diamondbacks have played one more game than the Giants, so the Dodgers have an edge there. The only team in the National League West that has been a powerhouse for the last few years, the Diamondbacks, have a losing record. The only way the Dodgers have missed the playoffs since 2011 is because the Giants won it all that year. The Dodgers' bullpen has not been great this season, but it is the best in baseball. The Los Angeles bullpen, minus the eight pitchers in the rotation, has a 2.19 ERA. It is the best in the majors.

Only the San Francisco Giants have a better bullpen. The Dodgers' 2.18 bullpen ERA is the best in the majors. Los Angeles
