However, when a feed is blocked by a Website owner, Feedburner and Feedly will mark the links as _proxied_ or _spoofed_ links. The name of the website and article will still show up on the article, but those who block feedjit links will not be able to click on the link. A feedjit link looks like this: If a Website owner blocks the feedjit link, the _byline_ will still show up on the article, but it won't show the name of the website or the article. However, the link to the article will still work as expected. ## Backup Your Work You may create a backup of your work to a CD, DVD, or thumb drive, and store it in your home, office, or car. Having a backup of your work can save you time when it comes to restoring from a backup or recovering from a problem that may cause a crash. Create a backup from inside Photoshop. Open the File menu and select Save as Type JPEG File: Click Browse, select File/Office, navigate to your desired location, and then select the JPEG compression option from the File Format menu. In the file format text box, type the name of the file and press Enter. Save your work as a PDF file instead if you don't have enough space on the CD or DVD to save an image as a JPEG. Alternatively, you can create a backup of your work from the Save As dialog box: Click File/Save As and then navigate to your desired location. Select the File Format option from the File Format menu. In the file format text box, type the name of the file, and then select a file format from the Format drop-down menu. In the preview, navigate to the folder or drive where you want to save the file. You can also restore your saved work from an Adobe Bridge backup. You can make an Adobe Bridge backup by opening Bridge and navigating to File/Automate Bridge. Photoshop of the latter. Moreover, defendant was a successful businessman and owner of a house with a tax value of over $100,000 in Jasper, Missouri. Surely he had the means and resources to pay a fine in the amount of $150,000--even taking into account the other penalty assessments (such as $350 in fees and $25 in court costs) that he was also ordered to pay. 21 Because the district court lacks the power to order a defendant incarcerated as a condition of probation, the District of Columbia Circuit ruled that the court erred by requiring defendant to repay his fine and reimburse the government for the cost of incarceration while on probation. United States v. Doe, 801 F.2d at 286-87. Thus, while section 3651 may give a sentencing court authority to order a defendant to pay a fine, it does not give the court authority to order a defendant to pay fines and reparations. The only fines for which a defendant may be required to pay are those imposed under section 3571. A defendant on probation for a felony must comply with the "statutory requisites for probation and the additional conditions as the court in its discretion determines are necessary." 18 U.S.C. Sec. 3651. A condition of probation that fails to satisfy section 3571 is invalid. 22 The District of Columbia Circuit's decision in Doe was based in part on its recognition that the court could properly require defendant to make restitution payments, and that a court is authorized to order a defendant to pay restitution as part of a sentence. See 18 U.S.C. Secs. 3579, 3580, 3581. However, as indicated above, no fine was imposed under section 3571 and none is imposed under the civil anti-racketeering statute, 18 U.S.C. Sec. 1964, on which the court relied in Doe. Indeed, in the latter case, the court stated that "a fine imposed on a defendant pursuant to Sec. 3571 is not'restitution' within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. Sec. 3579, even though it is collected 'by the same means authorized by law for the collection of fines,' because that statute requires'repayment to the United States of all'restitution obligations' " as part of a sentence. 801 F.2d at 286-87 (emphasis in original).

1. Field of the Invention This invention relates generally to an error detection coding/decoding apparatus and method, and more particularly to an apparatus and method for error detection coding/decoding of binary data. 2. Description of the Prior Art Error detection coding/decoding is well known in the art. A method and apparatus for error detection coding/decoding of binary data is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 4,583,066, issued Apr. 15, 1986, to K. Okumura et al. The apparatus disclosed in the Okumura et al. patent includes a first bit processing means for subtracting data bits of a plurality of rows excluding the last row from the last row to perform a first error detection operation and a second bit processing means for subtracting bits of a plurality of columns excluding the first column from the first column to perform a second error detection operation. An error detection decoder is connected to an output of the bit processing means and comprises a third bit processing means for subtracting the bits of the plurality of rows excluding the last row and the bits of the plurality of columns excluding the first column from a correct data group including the bits of the first column and the bits of the last row to detect an error in the bit processing means. When an error is detected in one row and one column in an error correction decoding process carried out in the above-described error detection coding/decoding apparatus, only one row and one column are corrected in the error correction decoding process. Therefore, since a data correction operation for correcting the error in the single row and column is always performed in a conventional error detection coding/decoding apparatus, a redundancy occurs and data cannot be transmitted effectively.Xethar Rendering of Xethar, a sphere powered by the energy of light. Xethar is a company that designs, manufactures and sells real-life carbon spheres with powers of magnification for use as mobile devices. The term “xethar” means “bright light” in the Dragon Lore language of the Dragon Pass. This technology originated with the Dragon Pass indigenous population, and was originally developed by the government to produce light in dark locations. Different-colored Xethar emit different wavelengths and powers of light, making them useful for specific purposes, and are available in various sizes. Xethar also produce a companion device called the LightTracer that generates lasers to create 3D models out of
