[Micronutrient deficiencies and blood lead levels in schoolchildren in the city of Ribeirão Preto, São Paulo State, Brazil]. The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of iron, zinc, and calcium deficiency and the relationship of these micronutrients to lead levels in schoolchildren in Ribeirão Preto, São Paulo State, Brazil. In 1992, a cross-sectional study was conducted using a random sample of 523 schoolchildren in grades 1 to 5 in the 2 largest schools of the city. In 1996, the same children were studied again. Information on the diets of the children was obtained from their mothers. Micronutrient concentrations were analyzed by neutron activation analysis. The values of iron, zinc, and calcium were significantly lower in the 1996 study than in the 1992 study. Among the 48 children studied in 1992, there was a positive correlation (r=0.23; pWith the deadline for enrollment for Obamacare remaining September 15, the Kentucky's largest insurance company has announced plans to slow down the enrollment process. BlueCross BlueShield of Kentucky, which has more than half the health insurance market in the state, will stop offering online applications and will no longer accept phone calls from people trying to sign up for Obamacare. The news comes as 20 percent of Kentuckians who signed up for the Obamacare exchanges have still not received their consumer information, according to the Wall Street Journal. Through Aug. 2, the Kentucky insurance exchange had enrolled 4
