Once you read the stories in this newspaper, you'll want to share them as much as you want others to read them. Like so much of the articles published here, it's not just about the food, it's about the people who have made it all possible. No disrespect to the restaurant's owners, but I don't think anybody is in charge. I think that's the spirit of the whole show. You see, I think everybody's an artist, even the cook and restaurant owner. I think that's the genius of New Orleans. You want to create something - and it doesn't need to be a fancy restaurant. It can be as simple as a brick oven-cooked pastrami on crispy French bread. It can be as simple as an old fashioned Cajun shrimp boil. It can be as simple as a combination plate of fried catfish, andouille sausage and green tomato chow-chow. All these meals have one thing in common. They are humble and they were made by someone with a passion, and passion inspires passion. And just like passion can inspire passion, I think that restaurant has inspired us all in the best way possible. Most people can agree that change is good. And just like the food served at C&C, so can the personality, style, and personality of the chefs and owners here. And just like food, you can appreciate them all. Q: Best way to host in-app purchase content on Magento I am creating an application in Magento and I would like to use the "in-app" purchasing model. Currently this process of how I set up my application and add "in-app" purchases to the app is not working. When downloading the app from the market, I would like to not have to buy the content that I am using but rather simply check a box saying "I already have this content" and then have a button that will take me to a list of the other items (or free ones) that I can buy. I was hoping to have this all handled using a web service or whatever. Currently, I am pretty much building the entire app myself, because I'm new to Magento and I want to learn. What would be the best way for me to use Magento to handle the in-app purchasing? Can I use a web service for something like this or am I just not using the correct Magento methods? Thanks

A: Magento has a good In-App store. It has a very good feature for those who only need to sell a product once (eg one-time and multi-time subscription). It is not possible to change the delivery state though
