I can still get the same download speed with regular internet with the dialup.) Other than that, the app works great. I have never been a fan of hidden object games but this one is well worth it. Herald Jack Ketch the hangman was running down the stone steps leading from Second to First when he caught a fleeting image of the man he was pursuing. He dropped his ax in shock and his face and body became the color of wax. Everyone in the street was instinctively aware that a hangman had dropped dead. Cut bodies are no novelty, but something about this one gave the impression that he was going to stay that way for hours. Doctor Willett was propped up with pillows, in a lounge chair; he was dressed in street clothes. Jack saw a pistol in his hand. "Who is it?" the doctor asked. "I don't know, Doc." But he did. The doctor's eyebrows came together in a puzzled frown. "Here, fetch me a glass of water. If the telephone don't work, I'll do you a muscle." Jack filled a glass and held it out. The doctor looked at it, saw that it was empty, and said: "I'm not really thirsty." He lay back and closed his eyes. Then he opened them and looked at the door. "Huxley isn't here. If he had been he would have told me. But I won't tell. Huxley! He's done it. Jack's dead and Huxley is in Arkham, at Arkham House. Listen! What's that? Then I heard the clatter of hoofs and horse bells, and something being ripped open. And Paul R-----! Oh, the devil, he knew I wouldn't tell—he found the way. He's got Paul R-----. The secret's out now, and he—
