The video for Unstable is the longest yet, clocking in at 54 minutes. Not only does this put her on a new level of fame, it also delivers several new challenges. For a start, 54 minutes is a long time to keep people's attention. In a Facebook video posted this week, JPEGMAFIA talks about the unique recording problems the long-form video brings. She also describes a number of the recording problems, including a series of vocal prompts in the middle that caused the rest of the song's music to stop. The vocal prompts are basically quiet snippets of the song being sung in her mind. "About seven minutes in, the first vocal, I thought I heard something in the vocalist's head or something, I couldn't tell what it was so I started

Does anyone know if Coreplot works in MonoTouch or not? And if so, can anyone recommend a free open source C# plotting library that works? A: See CorePlot is now open-source. I'm not sure if it's currently using MonoTouch, but can be ported to it fairly easily. I know this because I've done it. I've also done commercial applications, and I'm currently waiting on a change in direction and writing one for the company for it's next "alignment" towards mobile development, and the direction we're going with that product requires me to write it in MonoTouch.
