Serious Sam 2 is a First Person Shooter that takes place after the events of the first game. Serious Sam 2 continues his quest to stop an alien race of giant insects from invading and destroying the Earth. Serious Sam has to fight aliens, snakes, dinosaurs and many other enemies on his way. The game is a brutally unforgiving experience! Serious Sam 2 contains 36 new missions, which include a campaign, time trial and an assortment of mini-missions. Serious Sam 2 is not a sequel of the original Serious Sam game, but a very large expansion pack that has plenty of content to keep players entertained for hours. The original Serious Sam game has been re-engineered with new features, such as non-player characters (e.g. new creatures and bosses). Serious Sam 2 includes all the content found in the original game plus new weapons, new landscapes, new full-motion videos and new bosses. Serious Sam 2 is a huge game with over 60,000 units sold to date. Contributions to the soundtrack were made by the following musicians: Drums: Lukasz Bardel (for a total of 10 songs) Keyboards/Organ: Andrzej Baranowski Bass/Guitar: Wojtek Siedlecki Keyboards/Percussions: Daria Lachowska (for a total of 5 songs) Synth/Percussions: Vitalij Gaikov (for a total of 3 songs) Strings: Anna Wichniarz Vocal/Voices: Andrzej Nalepa (for a total of 7 songs) Keyboard, percussion, bass, synth and vocal tracks composed by Lukasz Bardel, Wojtek Siedlecki, Daria Lachowska, Anna Wichniarz, and Andrzej Nalepa respectively. For PDS distribution and online distribution via Steam, "Serious Sam 2 - Remastered" is a mixture between "Serious Sam 2 - Special Edition" and "Serious Sam 2 - The Original Soundtrack" and contains the PDS version of "Serious Sam 2 - Special Edition", the bonus content found in "Serious Sam 2 - The Original Soundtrack" and the original "Serious Sam 2 - CD" (with only the single "The Gunners" in a new edit). Additionally, the "Serious Sam 2 - Remastered" version contains a digital soundtrack c9d1549cdd

For the campaign, you will be able to find the Boost Ball in certain random battles, including at the ending of the final mission. It will be treated as a completely new level, and will consist of a new story with new enemies, obstacles, bosses, and cutscenes. The Boost Ball was not initially planned for the game, but the developers of this port were aware of the difficulty of this level, and decided to include it as an extra bonus. It is unlocked by inputting in the playroom mode the command "!boost" (without the quotes). This will activate the level "Boost Ball" on the level select screen. The Boost Ball contains a cube on its map, and can contain either blue or red cubes. Once all three are combined, a portal appears, which lets you warp to a point on the map, where you can call the cube to you and use it to jump to a new location on the map. However, there are many traps on the map, which give a pretty hard time to the player. This can be unlocked by inputting in the playroom mode the command "!boostcube".

Engagement of cell surface and receptor tyrosine kinases (RTK) on tumor cells is essential for the malignant transformation and invasiveness of many carcinomas, including breast cancer. Increased tyrosine kinase activity results in oncogenic transformation and development of malignant tumors. We have shown that activation of receptor tyrosine kinases (RTK) by epidermal growth factor (EGF) and basic fibroblast growth factor (bFGF) induces the transcription factor NF-kappaB in breast cancer cells. NF-kappaB was activated and bound to kappaB elements in the promoters of genes

What's new:

Posted on July 27, 2016 by DrLivingstone Whilst doing a bit of research into The Book of New Zealand's legacy in Serendipity-style legerdemain. I came across a bit of fun. Apparently the (actually it was Reg's experience) headmaster of a small school in Auckland had a little brainwave a few years ago when it came to sorting out his PE class. The plan was his beloved gluteus maximus figured out what kind of exercise the kids needed and came up with a game. It was called Reverse Escape Room. For anyone who hasn't heard of it, it's much like Simon Cowell's Golden Voice except you are in a small room with several walls and it doesn't have any panels you can pull, you only have to find your way out. The kids are split into teams. Some are being instructed to work out how to block off certain parts of the room from view. Others are being invited to bang on a wall to make a lot of noise or tap a light switch to shut off the lighting. As they go about their activities the teams' time inside is being tracked. You must find a way through the maze to reach the green door marked with the time you've been in the room and let yourself out - and if that's not possible, you're the loser. Anyway, a few weeks into his new experiment the headmaster was at it again and he turned the game on its head. His teams were given 60 seconds to solve a classic 'Reverse Escape Room' puzzle - a castle puzzle much like the ones you'd find in old board games and many escape games - and they were counting down the seconds. The teams all worked together. When the last second ticked away it had 60 seconds to solve it or concede defeat. The kids, of course, were absolutely nuts about it. None of them could solve it at that stage and part of the fun was working out the best way to plan to win when it really counted. They tried in different orders. Some were told to play in the absence of the others. Some tried working out how to set off the fire alarm or smash a wall. Some tried to convey a Morse code message out loud to pick up the next clue. And, as an amusement and a way to engage his class a bit more, their involvement continued during the
