Ballistic Pinball is VR without VR. It uses your Vive controllers to pick up, spin and drop the pinball in a virtual world. You can play alone or with friends in the same room. I've been working on this for about three years. So it's not actually brand new, but it's the first official release of this concept in VR. The goal has always been to get as close as possible to the experience of physical pinball. So you aren't actually looking at an image on a screen, but pinball feels just like pinball (which, by the way, actually happens to be one of the most fun and relaxing games ever invented!) Features: Simple, Fast, Modern - it doesn't take long to learn this game! Play alone or with friends in the same room. Play on up to 4 tables - there are 4 unplayable featureless tables that you can't play by yourself. Play VR board games with friends or play in your local tavern. Shoot the ball at targets as you try to hit the bonus ball on the jackpot. Get up to 50 balls per game! You can swap your Vive controllers with other people in real time Requires: Vive VR with SteamVR support Chaperone or Safety Mode with the 'Viewer Mode On' button to stop VR when someone else is playing Play your downloaded Pinball when it asks you to and the VR mode will automatically start (If you're using the Oculus DK2 you'll need to press the 'Viewer Mode On' button in SteamVR to stop the VR mode. You'll be able to play games without the 'Viewer Mode On' button, but VR won't be started automatically. See the Oculus Tips: ) How to play: You can play Pinball with a Vive, Oculus or HTC controller in VR. You can also play Pinball with the Vive controllers and Google Cardboard VR. You can use the Vive controllers as just that, controllers. I've turned off the head tracking for these for performance reasons. You can still use them to play tabletop games, though. See the instructions at:

incubus of the Goddess of Water and Life. You have been given the gifts of creation and destruction to aid you in your quest to help the Sumer the primitive, but hard working, a race of creatures created by the Anunnaki, your creators, their gods on a new planet they created. As they tell you, they are sods of the Gods, you are to help them survive and prosper, whilst helping you to succeed at your own goals, helping you as you help them, your godly creators, your ancestors, the Sumerans. Being a God and carrying the 'Fire Gift', the power to create and destroy, you have been charged with the task of using your gifts to aid the Sumerans with the ultimate goal of ascending to the heavens with the rest of your godly ancestors and becoming a God, to increase your mana and your powers. But first, as your creation, the Sumer, you must set about assisting them on their journey to prosperity, prosperity for the Sumerans that is, but first the task of creating land for them to thrive upon, so that they are prepared for their ascension into the heavens by your creators. But, as your creation, the Sumer, you are a wildcard and can get others involved in your quest for advancement, in a bid to become a God. This is your planet, it is your story and your destiny, with you, but for the Sumer, your care will be everything in this world, and above it Community Feel free to join the discord & forums, even if you don't feel able to contribute, just be a part of the community, it is our aim to make the Sumer a game d41b202975

Alina has been a professional warrior since the age of 14. Her expertise lies in the art of archery, particularly the skill of aiming and release. However, she has other talents that make her a worthy opponent. She is a great martial artist and can wield the powers of several martial arts in a single battle. Alina is a known expert in melee and has proven herself a proficient hand-to-hand combatant. ### What's new:

Time to throw our main and support hero into the open! Please note the technical difficulties with the video of the final fight. I had a bonafide nervous breakdown one day and took to the internet to record it all and put it on YouTube. This is the result. Watch or watch not, it doesn't matter, it's awesome and I assure you, kind of interesting. Note to commentors: The text version is the long version. Shorter and saner version: The text here is the little version of the above. Salutations, entertainers, and welcome to a new chapter of the Dawnguard DLC's legacy event! If you are joining us at the last minute, I'd like to first point out this is merely for those of the crowd that missed the first set of movies and walkthroughs, or those of you who aren't willing to wait for the official video. If you are interested in that then by all means, follow the main discussion. But if you don't care about the lore, the story, or see any reason we are doing this (other than to make more excuses to play Skyrim during livetune records), then stop reading this. Alright, let the tour begin: Hello there, I'm Alina of the Arena, I speak only for myself. You will see very little input from either our new PR person Alisha Petrovich or the writer, my fellow Arena veteran Helen Quested, assuming you even bother to read the text version. It's been awhile since my last bit of leg-breaking fun in Avryn to see how the new rumors from the Regal Museum and the new birds of Helgen hold up. Turns out with the help of my buddies, a halfway competent alchemist, the mistakes of the lore team can be undone at least for a short amount of time. The eerie feeling of being promised an answer to an important question in an article led me to uncover something new and unsettling about the Giant Boar, one of the huntable beasts of Helgen. Read on for what's inside. - The Good - First things first, using the ancient alchemy needed to do the chant, we can identify where that beast actually exists. Unfortunately though the beast is an engineered creation of a massive experiment. We need to bring the godrest vampire cell here to unravel the mystery. Oh and the good parts are pretty obvious. First off, anything that looks like
