This is a work in progress. (And in the future, I may add a more detailed section about how we will handle server shutdowns!) Hello! Hooray for the first half of this year's end-of-year roundup. It's been a busy few months here at Hex, and we want to thank everyone who's helped us get this far. We've had a lot of updates, new releases, and major content changes in the last month, so you'll be seeing this update a lot more than the average. As usual, this final roundup of 2013 will focus on the content-related aspects of Hex. Check out the Roundups from January, March, and May for more info on that. DRIVE EX The Drive Ex is our in-house virtual reality add-on for the Oculus Rift. Note that this update only works with Windows, and there is no Mac version. One of the more important announcements we've made this year is our partnership with Oculus Rift. We've been working together to bring the Drive Ex to the Oculus Rift, giving you the ability to play on PC and Mac with one of the most exciting new gaming platforms on the planet. The Oculus Rift is a special and unique technology, and although we've released the Drive Ex on other platforms, this will be the first time we've opened it to Rift owners. The Drive Ex was originally designed with the Unreal Engine 3, and although many games have moved to Unreal Engine 4, Drive Ex is still running on an older Unreal Engine 3, so we're not going to be moving it over to UE4 until we have to. The Drive Ex is not simply a game ported to a virtual reality headset, it's an entirely new game built from the ground up for Rift. There will be an entirely new art style, entirely new level design, entirely new gameplay mechanics, and more. As a result, we couldn't

Introducing the famous Elden Lord class system

A graduated class system. Characters are created in classes that range from classes from II to XX. Each class has its own subtopics and maintenance costs. Rising in a class ranks players up by 10 tiers. A heavy class that matches your play style and lets you focus more on combat will allow you to increase your attack power. A class that matches your play style and focuses on more support ability will help you to use the weapons and magic you equip the most.

When he reaches class X as the highest class, it is time to join the Ultimate Adventure! In order to make your character stronger, there are three subclasses in the Ultimate Adventure Class; World Hunter, Snow Archer, and Cave Monster. Together with your mounts, they can be taken into the Ultimate Adventure! The World Hunter and Snow Archer are two of those subclasses.

Targeted Class Synergies

Fully incorporating class synergies into the class system. What is each class missing? Classes that also have a class synergy will help players in a particular class in particular. For example, the Archer and the Mage will be able to strengthen their synergy. With a High Hunter, will those boost their abilities in combat. By combining different classes, you can take advantage of class synergies like these.

A police-run "recovery" centre has been opened in the wake of Labour's election landslide to deal with drugs addicts, alcoholics and the mentally ill in care and following their release from hospital. The National Drug Treatment Information Service (NDTIS) set up to help with the ongoing David Cameron’s “war on drugs”, has been at the centre of controversy since its inception. Councillor Andrew Furlong, mayor of North Durham, said: “The centre, which is a facility run by Northumbria Police and funded by the Home Office, is a reasonable response by the government to the rise in deaths from drug misuse, and saves money by detaining people in a more cost-effective way than running them in the community”. As with HMP Nottingham, NDTIS provides treatment for addicts who have been detained in one of Northumbria’s four police cells. But in Nottingham, which has been in the news over a number of deaths associated with the prison drug problem, the service has come under fire from prisoners’ rights campaigners and inmates’ families, because they don’t have any treatment available to them. In Northumbria, the service has been running for a year at its site in Red Hall, which NDTIS officials said was a location chosen to “minimise disruption to the surrounding area” and because “people with mental health needs are likely to be more amenable to receiving help in the community”. Its central location at Red Hall Community Centre means that people are much more likely to come to the facility for treatment than for other services such as mental health, mental
