Think of FIFA as a videogame engine in which you can build a world of soccer. On the field, you choose your 11 athletes, set your tactics and work to win the game. On the sidelines, you choose your coach and earn gameplay improvements to improve his team. FIFA feels massive and will challenge players to master more than 600 skills. From ball skills to tackling, you’ll build a soccer dynasty by managing your players, unlocking player cards, training your team and competing in the World Tour. The new challenge system gives players even more ways to play. With a new progression system and career mode, players can work towards personal objectives, teams can join leagues and earn greater rewards. Real-Life Player Development With as many as 600 new cards and new mechanics in each position, we’ve built an engine where every aspect of player development is player-driven. And to make player progression personal, players can easily unlock thematic items for their favourite teams and players, unlocking new items to support their clubs. And a more flexible formation system means that every match is different and every team can experiment. All of this is supported by the new Player Performance System, which measures the physicality of your players and their positioning on the pitch, allowing you to make small tweaks to create a more balanced, tactical team. Three New Game Modes We’ve expanded our match engine and introduced three new game modes. New to FIFA 22 is Champions League (multiplayer), FA Cup (co-op) and Club World Cup (co-op).
