Rubicon is a stealth action adventure set in the secret vaults of the Vatican. You play as a former member of the elite Italian Military Intelligence unit 'La Sopravissana' and your mission is to take out a dangerous terrorist mastermind. Approach, climb and sneak your way through levels full of blood and bullets. Use a variety of weapons including silenced pistols, sub-machine guns, and bazookas to complete your missions. You will complete the game in just a few hours but it will stay with you for a long time after. Release Date(s): This content will be released on May 21st 2014. No More Mysteries About Him? Yes, he was a sadistic, prosopagnosic serial killer who liked to hurt people. But we don't know anymore, do we? whistling music playing murmuring of deep depression. Maybe he was just a creepy homeless man before he killed someone. While the main character is enjoying life on Earth, his blind sister, Satanus, is stranded on the other side of the universe. Somehow, she has managed to cross through a space-time rift and has ended up on Earth. Now, Satanus is here to take revenge on her brother for something that happened thousands of years ago. Now that this game is nearly finished, I'd like to ask for help : -Write / edit some lyrics and more songs for the opening and ending theme -Record a voiceover -Dance in the ending scene The game will be fully finished in 2 months. Insert girl-like laughter sound here Every 5 entries or so, a devblog will be posted to show off the game's progress. ----- Holy shit! This had jumped out at me and I hadn't realized it was a signature thing. Gotta love this video! This is awesome! You know, just two months of work and we've made a really decent amount of progress. Maybe less than a year from now you'll have a shit ton of great new things you can do with this game! Anyway, I hope you enjoyed the video. And yeah, shoutout to Jide , with just two months, we could've had a proper release. And yeah, shoutout to this random dude in the corner while we were

May Be Better Than Antibiotics by Tina Dalzell, MS, RD

Sometimes hot foods can cure colds Days before Christmas, families rejoice at the thought of visiting the malls to shop for the big gift for Dad. Do you consider getting one for your parents? Shopping for gifts for your mom, dad, your sister or brother doesn't have to end up with a stuffed animal or $30 mask that your kids will pawn off on their parents. How about a better gift? Sure, you could do what most people do and throw a gift card to your mom's coffee shop, but did you ever think about giving her a great gift that would not only please her and keep her looking her best — but it may even give her a health boost? A gift that would look good on her gift certificate, is easy, and pretty inexpensive? Why not give her a gift to color her hair? Everyone knows that some of the best highlights, by far, are from coloring your hair with a kit. If your mom has a bad case of gray around the edges, why not give her a tip she can try? Coloring your hair could be one of the best gifts you can send your family. Historically, a woman's wedding had to come with a couple weeks of sophisticated shampooing in the back streets before she hit the town. Now, the days of endless rinsing and drying has put most mothers on a new path. Their days of shampooing every day has changed to coloring their hair every 2 to 3 weeks. The same concept applies to your dad. Now that medical science says men are getting more hairy than women, the old time tradition of shaving Dad's head is out and things have changed. What used to be a much anticipated shower for dad's is no longer a priority. Put Mom and Dad in to the Mood with Color Color has been around for thousands of years, and we are still adding to it. From the monks and nuns in the middle ages who used flower petals to create kohl-lined eyes, to the Japanese kimono wedding ceremony, and African voodoo, color and its effect on the human body has been around for a while. Today we can use color on ourselves to enhance ourselves, on our friends, and our food. How to Give Great Gifts that Makes a Difference It is refreshing when someone gives a gift that makes an impression on the
