We present a case of nephrogenic secondary hyperparathyroidism in a young child who had responded to parenteral bisphosphonate therapy. This case illustrates that all children receiving oral bisphosphonates should be monitored for symptoms of hypercalcaemia. Osteonecrosis of the jaws can occur in children and may be precipitated by any severe disruption of the normal bone metabolism. Although the case was successfully treated, a long-term follow-up is mandatory to detect recurrence of the disease.news, local-news, noona, unisex toilet, glen mead hall A Queensland University of Technology lecturer has been forced to abandon her gender neutral bathroom after university Vice Chancellor Paul Quinn ordered her to use the toilet used by men. Professor Rosemary Boyd, who is in the process of writing a book on gender and toilets, said she was forced to step out of her gender neutral bathroom because she had gone to the wrong one. Professor Boyd said her bathroom has no door and that she uses it more or less everyday. She said she had already complained to the Vice Chancellor's office that when she went to use the bathroom on Monday, she went to the nearest bathroom that she could find, but that it was the men's toilet. Professor Boyd said she "couldn't believe it, it was completely disorganised" and that the door to the bathroom was also closed. "I went in and one of the workers asked what was wrong, and I told him I didn't know I went in the wrong toilet, and he just shrugged it off as it wasn't him who was going into the toilet." "I'm not putting a door on it, I feel like women need privacy when they go to the toilet. It's not fair that when I

A case of a 25-year-old woman with masticator syndrome due to bulbar paralysis is presented. This was diagnosed 9 years after surgery for Bell's palsy. A combination of vagal nerve stimulation and surgical repair was successful. There are three main syndromes in pharyngeal motor paralysis: upper motor neuron syndrome, lower motor neuron syndrome and spastic paresis. Lower motor neuron syndrome is the most common, and frequently is preceded by the upper motor neuron syndrome. The spectrum of the latter is much wider than previously thought, ranging from Bell's palsy to more severe forms such as traumatic neuropathy, neurosarcoidosis, and Guillain-Barré syndrome. To establish the diagnosis, we must ask the patient about swallowing problems. The clinician should suspect bulbar paralysis when swallowing problems or dysphagia appear during 3 months after surgery for Bell's palsy. To treat bulbar paralysis, two medications are used, botulinum toxin and surgical correction., my time will come and we'll both be all right." " Yeah, maybe we will be all right." " Yeah, maybe." "And I'll fly your horse across the desert and I'll join your wife and your kids and your sister in Vegas and we'll live on Cadence's pension." "Maybe." "Maybe." "I'll just be honest with my mother, tell her that I love her." "I mean, I do love her, just the way she is." "And I'll go to Vegas and I'll stay in the hotel where we first met." "And if one night she just happens to be there too, we'll just walk on the Strip together and we'll look up at the stars and we'll just be happy." "And we'll both be all right." "You know, you know, I don't have to lie to you." "We could sit down right now and I could not just look at you." "You know, I could look at you and tell you that I've already fallen in love." "And that I could give up everything that I've ever wanted to give up" "I 6d1f23a050
