This software is not really easy to manage and this is extremely bad news for those who use it for their personal computer. You need to have a very good knowledge of computer programming to utilize this type of security software application effectively. There are also other types of online virus scanners out there on the internet, ranging from only a couple of dollars to a couple of hundred dollars per year per computer. I'm trying to understand what is meant by this question. "define the genus of a knot, more formally, given an oriented knot K, its genus is the minimal integer r with the following property: if S is a subsurface of a 3-manifold M such that K is isotopic to a knot in S, then K is homologous to zero in S." I'm trying to link this with the genus of a surface in the sense of topology. Then this condition is equivalent to saying that there exists a locally flat embedding of S in \mathbb{R}^3 such that a cycle in that S represents K. Could anyone clarify the relation between this and the topological genus of a surface? A: The topological genus of an orientable surface \$\$\$ is the smallest integer $g(S)$ such that any properly embedded arc in the plane defines an embedded surface of genus $g(S)$. A simple way to define the genus of a knot is then $g(K)=g(\partial u(K))$. Here ∂u denotes the boundary of a tubular neighborhood of the knot. This definition is intuitively obvious, it is equivalent to the number of double points of $\partial u(K)$.
